

Two Potential Options

- 1) Only use a .csv file that includes data from years that all balls were in rotation
- 2) Current probability is $\frac{\text{frequency}}{\text{total Draws}}$

Changing to divide the frequency by how many years it has been active prior to drinking by total Draws should account for differences in ages of rotation.